On the small screen, Price graced the cast of "Saved by the Bell: The College Years" (1993-1994) and starred in the TV movie "My Date with the President's Daughter" (1998). She captivated viewers with her recurring role as Zoe on the popular sitcom "Joey" (2004-2006). Price's versatility extends to voice acting, where she has lent her voice to the animated series "American Dad!" (2005-2008) and "Regular Show" (2010-2013).

Act II: Transcending the Silver Screen: Music and Philanthropy

Beyond her accomplishments in film and television, Price is also a gifted musician. She has released two studio albums, "White Noise" (2006) and "Everything Must Go" (2009), showcasing her soulful vocals and introspective lyrics.

Price's unwavering commitment to philanthropy is equally remarkable. She has dedicated her time and resources to various charitable organizations, including Chrysalis, which supports homeless and low-income individuals. Her passion for helping others shines brightly, inspiring those around her.

Act III: Personal and Private: A Tapestry of Relationships and Family

Price's personal life has been intertwined with both joy and adversity. She was married to Drew Fuller from 2007 to 2011, and they welcomed a son, Darbi, in 2010. After their divorce, Price found love again with Terry Price, and they married in 2013. Together, they have two sons, Billy and Leo.

Epilogue: A Legacy of Impact and Inspiration

White Lindsay Price's life journey is a testament to her resilience, determination, and unwavering spirit. Through her successful career, captivating music, and compassionate philanthropy, she has left an enduring imprint on the world. As she continues to inspire and entertain, Price's legacy as a multifaceted artist and a beacon of hope will continue to shine brightly for generations to come.
